Step 1: Getting Started When you first use the App Studio, you will see a list of supported templates that can be customized, and a workspace area to enter the design. Your project is represented in the workspace area as a dataflow graph which shows the flow of data. The dataflow graph contains the root nodes, which are the components and the edges, which are the inputs and outputs. Note: When you select a sample to use in the App Studio, this dataflow graph is automatically populated with all the customizations you made in App
